Vegetable Soup

1 leek with about 10-12 inches of white to very light green stalk (after slicing down center of length of leek, slice white and light green part thinly)

1/2 large onion chopped

2 tbsp of chopped garlic

3 containers of Swanson 100% natural vegetable broth (low sodium if you can find it)

1 15 oz can tomato sauce

2 carrots cut into 1/2 chunks

2 zucchini cut into 1/2 chunks

2 8oz baskets of sliced mushrooms

1 head cauliflower (break it up into bite size pieces)

1 tbl of Tajin low sodium with lime seasoning (found it at smiths by the fresh vegetables)

1 tsp of red pepper flakes

In an 8 quart pot, put a little oil or spray Pam in the bottom and put the heat on medium- medium high.

When the oil is warm, sauté the garlic for a bit and turn the heat to medium. Add the chopped leek and onion and sauté them until their a little soft. While that's cooking, spray a frying pan with Pam, heat it to medium, add a little garlic, stir that around, then add the mushrooms and cook them until the water is gone. Add a little salt and garlic salt for taste to them. Set the mushrooms aside when they're done.

Once the leek and onion are soft, add the tomato sauce, broth, and the other veggies (including the mushrooms) and spices. Start with about 1/3 of the the amount of spices and add more as you taste it. The red pepper sneaks up on you so be sure to cook it some before adding more because you can add too much easily. That will make about 12 servings. My fitness pal says 1 serving is about 56 calories

Don't forget you can always add brown rice, or whole wheat pasta and chicken or left over steak cut in chunks to make it a full dinner.

I measure the serving of soup and 1 cup of that soup is 39 calories.
